DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-2 are pending for consideration.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statements submitted on 04/04/2006 and 02/01/2007 are being considered by the examiner.

Specification

3. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Objections

4. Claims 1 and 2 are objected to because of the following informalities:

Regarding claim 1, "the programmable-logic-controller" should change to "the programmable logic controller", in lines 5 and 19.

Regarding claim 2, "a programmable-logic-controller" should change to "the programmable logic controller", in line 1.

In addition to claim 2, "the programmable-logic-controller peripheral device" should change to "the programmable logic controller peripheral device", in lines 3 and 8

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Redler (WO 00/17758) (hereinafter Redler).
7. Regarding claim 1, Redler discloses a peripheral device for a programmable logic controller, the peripheral device comprising: an encryption means for encrypting peripheral device authentication data used in authentication for authorizing use of the programmable logic controller peripheral device itself, encrypting data used in the programmable logic controller, and encrypting authentication data that is established in the programmable logic controller and that verifies whether or not communication with the programmable logic controller is authorized for the data used in the programmable logic controller (Redler: page 5, "computer mouse device 10 has a microcontroller or independent logic system which reads optical signals and sends pulses"; page 6, paragraph 1 and paragraph 5 "encryption unit"; page 7, paragraph 2 and paragraph 5); an external storage means for storing at least peripheral device authentication data having been encrypted (Redler: figure 3, item 14 "smartcard"); an internal storage means for storing at least peripheral I device authentication data having been encrypted (Redler: page 10, paragraph 3); a decryption means for decrypting the peripheral device authentication data, the data used in the programmable logic controller, and the authentication data (Redler: page 9, paragraph 4); and a verification means for determining whether or not use of the programmable logic controller peripheral device is authorized, by checking peripheral device authentication data read out from the external storage means and decrypted, against peripheral device authentication data read out from the internal storage means and decrypted (Redler: page 8, paragraph 2; and figure 6 a).

8. Regarding claim 2, Redler further discloses wherein when communication between the programmable logic controller and the programmable logic controller peripheral device is via a network: the encryption means is further for encrypting network authentication data for authorizing the communication between the programmable logic controller and the programmable logic controller peripheral device (Redler: page 12, paragraph 5; page 13, paragraph 2; and page 14, paragraph 2); the external storage means is further for storing the network authentication data (Redler: figure 4, item 49 "software package serial number"; and page 14, paragraph 2); and the decryption means is further for decrypting the network authentication data stored in the external means (Redler: page 19, paragraph 3; and page 14, paragraph 2).
